An Encouraging Word

The story is told about the Prince of Baghdad who sent his servant into town on an errand. As the servant walked through the city, he came face to face with Death. The servant noticed an expression of surprise on the horrid creature's face, but quickly ran away without speaking a word. The servant was so frightened that he was about to die that he packed his bags and ran to the far-off city of Samarra. The Prince of Baghdad bid him farewell and went into the city to find this horrid creature called Death. When he found him he said, "Why did you startle my servant this morning? You caused him great emotional harm." To which Death replied, "I did not startle him; it was he who startled me. I was surprised to see him in Baghdad today, for I have an appointment with him in Samarra tomorrow."

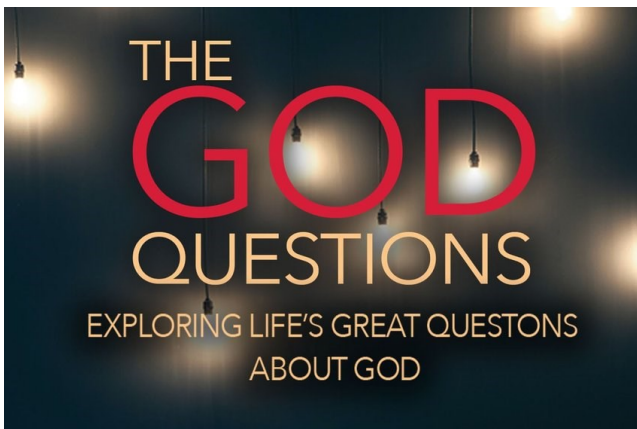

Everyone will die. And when you die, that may be the end of your body, but it is not the end of you. The moment you die, you will enter the realm of eternity. And eternity consists of only two places. A wonderful place called Heaven and a horrible place called Hell. Where you spend eternity depends totally on how you respond to Jesus Christ. I want to encourage you today to make sure that you are ready for your appointment with death.

Be encouraged,
Pastor Rob
