An Encouraging Word

I am walking down the road and I find a watch on the ground. I pick it up and examine it and notice the back of the watch is missing. I can see the hundreds of pieces and parts of the watch working together to make it function properly. When I see something as sophisticated and complicated as a watch, I will assume that somewhere, there is a watch maker who put it all together.

And when I walk outside at night and look up into the heavens, I see the moon, the stars and the mountains. I feel the wind and see the plants and the trees. When I see such a great and mighty universe, my first assumption is that somewhere there is a universe maker who put it all together. The Bible tells us His name is Elohim, God. And if your God is not big enough to create everything that you see and everything the world discovers, then your God is too small. For with every new discovery, I can rejoice because I know that whatever science discovers, God created a long time ago!

Be encouraged,
 Pastor Rob
